The image is a screenshot of the Starry Night software interface. The main window displays a night sky simulation with several constellations labeled: Cancer, Gemini, Auriga, and Canis Minor. The Moon is prominently featured in the center, with a callout box showing its name and a small image. A sidebar on the left contains a search bar and a list of objects, with 'Moon' selected. A timeline at the bottom shows the current date and time as 2/26/2026, 9:15:56. The interface is dark-themed, with white text and lines for constellation boundaries.
